DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on August 13, 2007, has been entered.

Response to Amendment

2. Claims 1-13 remain pending.

Election/Restrictions

3. Claims 9-13 remain withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on June 8, 2006.

Response to Arguments

4. The objection to the title is withdrawn in view of the amendment filed August 13, 2007.

5. With respect to the prior art rejections, Applicant's arguments are not persuasive. Applicant's characterization of PTFE as "not melt-processable" is not accurate. According to the Fluoroplastics reference, cited by Applicant PTFE homopolymers are not processable by conventional methods, whereas copolymers and substituted polymers are melt-processable by conventional methods [introduction, column 1, paragraph 3]. It is clear from the abstract that Honda is directed to PTFE-based co-polymers. As such, there is no evidence that the compounds of Honda are not melt-processable.

6. It remains the Examiner's position that it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to incorporate the conductive particles taught by Kawasaki in the fluororesin layer of Honda. Honda teaches that the conductive particles can be "any of the commercially available ones," which would have motivated one of ordinary skill to look to the prior art for such suitable particles. Kawasaki teaches examples of conductive particles suitable in the roller applications of Honda. There is no evidence of record that the conductivity of the particles taught by Kawasaki is dependent upon the type of resin in which the particles reside. Consequently, it would have been obvious to utilize such particles.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

8. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Honda et al. in view of Kawasaki et al.

A. These claims are rejected for the same reasons set forth in the prior Office action 05/16/2007 and are maintained for the reasons set forth above.

B. The claims have been amended to recite a rotolining composition. It is the Examiner's position that this limitation, appearing only in the preamble, is merely a statement of intended use and does not carry any patentable weight because:

(1) this limitation is not essential to limitations or terms in the claim body; (2) the preamble has not yet been relied upon during prosecution to distinguish the invention over the prior art; and (3) the claim body describes a structurally complete invention such that deletion of the preamble phrase does not effect the claimed steps of the claimed invention. See Catalina Marketing International, Inc. v. Coolsavings.com, Inc., 62 USPQ2d 1781 (CAFC 2002).

Conclusion

9. The prompt development of clear issues in the prosecution history requires that applicant's reply to this Office action be fully responsive (MPEP § 714.02). When filing an amendment, applicant should specifically point out the support for any amendment made to the disclosure, including new or amended claims (MPEP §§ 714.02 & 2163). A fully responsive reply to this Office action, if it includes new or amended claims, must therefore include an explicit citation (i.e., page number and line number) of that/those portion(s) of the original disclosure which applicant contends support(s) the new or amended limitation(s).
